THE DEFINITIVE WORK THE GREAT PULP HEROES

DON HUTCHISON

Back in the thirties and forties, every guy harbored stacks of pulp fiction magazines bearing lurid covers designed to capture the eye with circus poster brilliance. Printed on cheap wood pulp paper and costing only about ten cents, these magazines were called "the pulps."

Condemned by educators and ignored by critics, the so-called pulps were the working person's escape hatch – a vivid splash of color in the emptiness of the Great Depression. The Great Pulp Heroes is an important look at the way in which certain figures concocted in the 1930s and 1940s became vital threads in the fabric of popular culture.

Don Hutchison is widely recognized as a leading authority on the history of the pulp fiction era. He has published numerous magazine and newspaper articles and two books on the subject, including The Scarlet Riders: Action-Packed Mountie Stories from the Fabulous Pulps.

"A fantastic book! Don Hutchison is one of pulpdom's finest writers and researchers. The book is a pleasure to read. Buy it!"
- PULP VAULT MAGAZINE

"Highly Recommended! The best book about the pulps that we have seen in years. Don Hutchison pours love for the old magazines into this fascinating work. This should be on every pulp enthusiasts book shelf."

KILLING LANA

A NOVEL BY LEON WHITESON

Sex, violence and insanity. Get into the unhinged mind of a man who loves too much in this shocking new novel by bestselling author Leon Whiteson.

Some people fantasize about killing their spouse at one time or another...but Allan is serious about it.

Allan is a man obsessed. He loves his wife Lanna so much that he needs to kill her. On the surface, Allan appears totally rational, yet he can't stop thinking about murdering her, regardless of the consequences.

This fascinating novel explores the complex relationship between Allan and his wife Lanna. It uncovers Allan's bizarre passion that leads him and the reader into the dark side of true love.

Leon Whiteson is no stranger to the themes of passion and violence. He is the co-author of the bestselling book, A Place Called Waco which is now being turned into a feature-length Fox Television film. Leon Whiteson's most recent works include A Terrible Beauty: An Exploration of the Positive Role of Violence in Life, Culture and Society, Mosaic Press 2000, In The Garden of Desire: An Erotic Novel, Mosaic Press 2000, A Garden Story, Faber 1995, Experimental Architecture in Los Angeles, Rizzoli, 1995 and three previous novels.

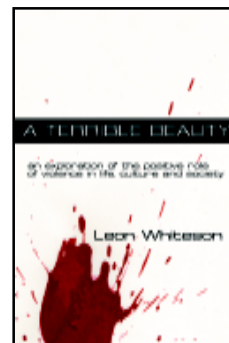

In addition, Whiteson was nominated for Pulitzer Prize for his articles on the Watts Towers. He has been a screenwriter with the BBC and London Weekend Television and he has worked with film producers Otto Plaschkes, Michael Winner and Alex Jacobs.

erotic FICTION

IN THE GARDEN OF DESIRE

Erotic Meditations

LEON WHITESON

A celebration of love and sex through the seasons...In the Garden of Desire presents a series of linked stories exploring a wide range of explicit sexual experiences.

The book follows the seasons of erotic life -from Spring and the loss of innocence, to the sizzling adventures of Summer, to the darker side of sexuality in Fall, and finally Winter, where deeper levels of sexual feeling are expressed in compassion and tenderness.

In the Garden of Desire is a book inspired by the erotic love poetry of medieval Andalusia, celebrating every aspect of love and sex.

Leon Whiteson is an accomplished novelist, having published four novels in Canada and Great Britain, is an architectural critic for Architectural Digest and the Los Angeles Times, an essayist having published a book about his garden entitled A Garden Story with Faber & Faber and has just co-authored a very important book on the Waco Texas massacre entitled A Place Called Waco published by the Perseus Group in New York. He has lived in Zimbabwe, South Africa, London, Toronto and now Los Angeles.

CULTURE OF CITIES

...under construction

The Culture of Cities Project is an international interdisciplinary five-year research project studying the lived experience of place in urban life.

This book is like the city itself, a collective effort where each place shows itself at different stages of planning and construction. These essays examine the particularities of the cultures of Montreal, Toronto, Dublin and Berlin and include local uses of cinema and the arts, public space and global economies.

Areas of research focus on building and rebuilding, the circulation of objects and artifacts, representations of locality, the arts, and citizenship. The purpose is to sustain the dialogue on the good city and the good of the city that is implicit or a tacit feature of research and commentary on urban life.

This collection of papers, The Culture of Cities...under construction, emerges from The Project's first graduate colloquium, held in Toronto in November 2000, and involves participants from the universities of Montreal, Concordia, Quebec at Montreal, McGill, Calgary, Waterloo and York.

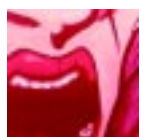

The Culture of Cities Project is funded through the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada as part of their Major Collaborative Initiatives Program. The project director is Alan Blum of York University in Toronto.

“THE NABES”

Toronto’s Wonderful Neighborhood Movie Houses

Foreword by Elwy Yost

With texts by Norman Jewison, Jack Batten, and others

The “nabes”, or neighborhood movie theatres were a phenomena which peaked in the 1940s. Every neighborhood in Toronto and in almost every major city throughout North America had a “nabe” which became the center for entertainment, enjoyment, cinema. People organized their entertainment lives to attend their “nabe” on a weekly basis – to watch movies, to see the newsreel, to meet friends, even to collect the “gifts” which were common as a premium give-away.

The “nabes” were an important part of North American culture. Alas, these movie houses fell into decline during the 1970s and are now virtually extinct. See for yourself in a large section of interesting “then and now” photo spreads.

John Sebert, the renowned photographer, has now researched these landmark sites in Toronto’s archives. He has tracked down original photographs of the “nabes” in their heyday and taken photos of the way they are today.

10 X 8 inches • 90 Photos

Numerous well-known personalities have contributed texts which document their own ‘love affairs’ with their local “nabes.” This book is an important visual record of a city, its transformation, its evolution and its cultural record.

I BELONG TO THE STARS: ADVENTURES IN PUBLIC RELATIONS

Gino Empry

Tears, tantrums, sex and screaming fans... life among the stars is never dull.

Gino Empry, one of North America's leading publicists, has been at the center of the entertainment industry in North America for over four decades and at long last he is telling it all...

From Frank Sinatra to Celine Dion, from Tony Bennett to Playboy to Cher. Gino Empry's client list is a veritable 'who's who' of the entertainment world.

Gino has developed and nurtured the careers of many of North America's leading actors, singers and entertainers. Here we get to meet these people through the eyes of Gino Empry, the man behind the lights and glitz, the man who knew these people intimately, on-stage and off. He shared their lives, their loves, and their laughter.

Inside you will find chapters on Cher, Ella Fitzgerald, Jack Lemmon, Tony Bennett, Peter O'Toole, Peggy Lee, Ed Mirvish, Yul Brenner, Marlene Dietrich, Rosemary Clooney, Duke Ellington, Jane Russell, Roch Voisine, Lena Horne, Phyllis Diller and Xaviera Hollander.

Each chapter also contains rare photos and visual materials culled from Gino Empry's vast personal archive.

In this book we see the stars as more than celebrities, we see them as human beings.

press release

ANNOUNCING THE FEBRUARY 20TH RELEASE OF ...

THE CD: Field Commander Cohen: Tour of 1979

and

THE BOOK: The Song of Leonard Cohen by Harry Rasky

Both the book and the CD document Leonard Cohen's hugely successful 1979 tour.

Leonard Cohen has sold more than 11 million albums worldwide and he has published 11 books. His songs have been covered throughout the world and have influenced generations of songwriters.

With this latest book about Leonard Cohen, The Song of Leonard Cohen by Harry Rasky, you can get to know the man behind the mystique...

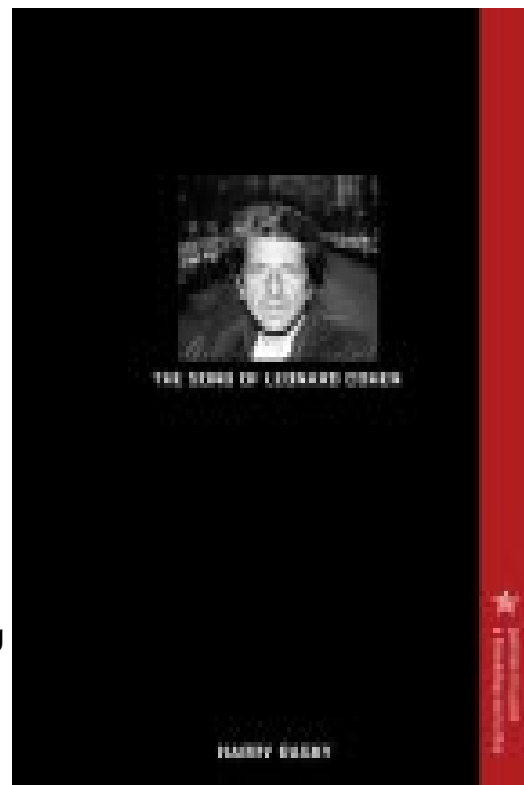

The New York Times, covering one of Cohen's 1993 performances, cited the remarkable consistency of Cohen's nearly 30 years of songwriting, pointing to his "stately, imaginistic songs with zingers every few lines." In concert, "romance and religiosity are intertwined...For Mr. Cohen, the concert is a somber ritual, not to be broken even by obstreperous audiences...There was no pretention in Mr. Cohen's concert...the music, though unhurried, held genuine melodies, and Mr. Cohen's lyrics rarely made a false move...his grave voice, beyond the possibility of sweetening or credulity, is their best vehicle."

The Los Angeles Times noted the infrequency of Cohen's live shows caused them to "take on the air of a pilgrimage, with the faithful approaching him more as a spiritual leader than a mere musician...the remarkable thing about Monday's concert at the Wiltern Theatre was that Cohen, nearing 60 and 25 years after his first album, offered not only the expected satisfying ritual, but also with an element of vital, restless artistic movement...his often brutal, bruising encounters with the soul's scariest corners have touched a nerve in the vanguard of the post-punk crowd."
